

Yesterday I Had Tomorrow

Written By Gary Lee Vincent

© 1997 Gary Lee Vincent

Yesterday I had tomorrow

But now I have today
And as I look upon my past
My dreams just fade away

For you can dwell in either time
Of places that you see
For you can dwell in any place
But the present is where you'll be

You can eat the fruits of pleasure
Or you can sow the seeds of woe
You can dream of times to treasure
Or lament for times ago

Yesterday I had tomorrow
But now I have today
Eternity begins in just a second
But now is where I'll stay.

